

Method for pickling metallic surfaces by using alkoxylated alkynols

Abstract

- 5 Process for pickling metallic surfaces by treating the metallic surface with a composition which comprises water, at least one acid, an alkyne alkoxylate and optionally further additives. In a preferred embodiment, the alkyne alkoxylate is used together with a complexing agent.